A Unique Marriage Proposal

Jea turned to Go Get It! to help him propose to his girlfriend Gina in the most romantic way possible.

He had one stipulation: The proposal must be as fun and as unique as his girlfriend of 3 years, who he described as incredibly vivacious.

Jea knew Gina was obsessed with supermarket tabloids and had always wanted to live the life a famous celeb. Go Get It! custom designed an adventure placing her in a whirlwind of celebrity over-indulgence, pampering, excitement, and mystery.

It started with a lunch for Gina and Jea at The Ivy Restaurant in Beverly Hills. Gina experienced first hand what it's like to be a sought-after celebrity as actors playing paparazzi and fans started snapping photos, and hounding her for an autograph.

Halfway through the lunch, a "fan" interrupted Gina's meal asking her to autograph his current US Weekly magazine. She was astounded to find herself on the cover, featured as Ashton's Kutcher's new girlfriend. Immediately following the autograph session, Gina's new "publicist" introduced herself. Gina was whisked away to her awaiting limousine, all the while dodging the clicking shutters of the paparazzi.

After an afternoon in Beverly Hills with stops at Kitson Boutique, a palm reader, the Peninsula Hotel Spa and Shutters on the Beach, Gina was finally reunited with Jea. At sunset she followed a trail of long-stemmed red roses to find Jea on the beach with a bottle of champagne in one hand and a ring in the other. With the
